THE NATIONAL GUARD AND NATIONAL GOVERNMENT.

HISTORY OF THE ARMIES OF THE WORLD'S REPUBLICS.

By Lieut. SAMUEL A. BOYLE, JR., Commissary Third Infantry.

THE relations between the Chief Executive as representing Federal or National Government, the emergency or Volunteer Army and the Regular Army are three grave matters on which the ablest and most patriotic of men have at all times differed violently and unrelentingly.

The exact position of the National Government, its authority and its limitations concerning the Army, especially the volunteer portion of the Army, appears to be the most menacing and important question which now confronts, not only the Federal Legislature, but also State Governments.

I am confident that those in non-official life with any military experience who will give this matter the serious consideration which it so richly deserves, and never more so than now, will be unanimous in the opinion that the chaos which now envelops this vital matter is dangerous to the very life itself of the Government, and certainly fraught in its present uncertainty with great many distasteful and humiliating features; especially does it pique our pride since these relations should and could with expedition be simplified and unalterably defined.

More in particular are the National Guardsmen entitled to this in order that they might know positively what will be their status in the event of another call for their services from the Federal Government, and whether or not they shall be expected to enter that service in the capacity of individual enlistments or whether or not they shall be mustered in as members of and a part of a State Organization, and again, whether or not their positions as officers or non-commissioned officers in the National Guard shall be maintained and sustained relatively in the Regular Army.

The necessity of having these questions defined and decided has become so clear since the re-enlistment of the Spanish-American Volunteers that it would be well serving the best interests of the volunteer if every applicant for membership in its ranks would be compelled to first pass a rigid examination on the constitutional provisions affecting these relations together with all other matters akin thereto. However, I fear that such an undertaking at this time would be futile and unquestionably a waste of valuable time since the provisions of the Constitution that seem to have no specific or consistent application, but on the contrary almost every Administration seems to twist and distort it to suit and serve its own political exigencies and environments. This was thoroughly exemplified in the disturbances immediately following and a consequence of the Civil War, also in the late labor troubles which occurred at Chicago and various other places, and again most notoriously in the repeated controversies and opinions which pregnated our well-meaning but too often misguided press prior to and during the Spanish-American War as to the authority of Congress or the President to direct the National Guard for service in the Federal Army on foreign soil. Equally as many times has the power of the State Executive been challenged by the same agencies when he has called upon the National Guard to quell some disturbance, labor or otherwise, and it is an undeniable fact that on every such occasion when the State Executive has exercised this extraordinary power his motives have been impugned and he, himself, been compelled to submit to the most vituperative and reckless attacks by those of opposite political faith. The remedy for these evils is alone in Congress and it is to be hoped that at the next session of that august body, its members will be sufficiently courageous and non-sectional to bring about the relief the gist of which seems to be to constitute by enlistment the National Guard as a provisional part of the Regular Army.

Secretary Root has already offered valuable suggestions and recommendations for the accomplishment of such an undertaking, and in a letter, recently published by him, remarkable for its official unreservedness, he states without equivocation that our future position among the armies of the Nations depends hugely upon the consummaton of some such plan where the National Guard will co-operate with the Federal authorities and the Federal Army as an integral part of such institutions being amenable to all of the regulations and laws of the Regular Army, and at all times being liable to a call for service in the Regular Army whether such service be on domestic or foreign territory, and with a clear understanding that the right of answering yes or no was not reserved to them, as in the Spanish-American War. Such a consummation would obliterate the dangerous chasm which now separates the National Guard and the Federal Government and the individual States would no longer be as they now are with respect to their guardsmen, independent sovereigns.

The Late LT. COL. GEORGE W. WALLACE
9TH INFANTRY.

It seems curious and certainly paradoxical from a literal view that a Republic should be continually vexed about the disposition of its arms, and more in particular about the status of its volunteers, but yet it is a historical fact that these questions in different forms, but essentially the same, caused as much alarm and apprehension in the councils of Carthage, Rome, Genoa, Florence, Piso, Holland and France, as they are now giving us in the Twentieth Century.

[TO BE CONTINUED]

LT. COL. GEORGE W. WALLACE

Lieut.-Col. George W. Wallace, Ninth Infantry, who was instantly killed on the morning of September 30, while at work in an airshaft of a mine, was well known throughout the division. Colonel Wallace was a true and noble specimen of our citizen soldiery, having filled the several positions from private to lieutenant-colonel with credit and distinction. As a field officer he had few superiors in the State, and at all times enjoyed the full confidence of the line. Private Co. "E," Ninth Infantry, February 27, 1882; Corporal, January 2, 1883; Sergeant, January 1, 1884; First Lieutenant, July 15, 1885; Captain, June 3, 1886; re-elected, June 29, 1891; Major, June 22, 1894; Lieut-Colonel, July 14, 1897; Lieut-Colonel Ninth Pennsylvania Volunteer Infantry, Spanish-American War, May 11, 1898.

Reception tendered Governor Stone by Major-General Charles Miller and Staff, at Franklin, Pa., October 1st.

October 1st was a fete day in the picturesque little city of Franklin, the home of our esteemed Major General Charles Miller, Commanding Division National Guard of Pennsylvania. Governor Stone and many other officials came as the guests of General Miller.

Governor Stone, the guest of honor, arrived with his party at noon in two special Pullman cars, and were received at the station by General Miller and Congressman Sibley, the Military escort comprising Company "F" of the 16th Infantry, Captain Burt S. Shafer. The Governor was accompanied by Mrs. Stone, Miss Jean Stone and his Private Secretary Mr. Edgar C. Gerwig.

Brigadier General John W. Schall, the popular Commander of the First Brigade also came with the Governor's party and was accompanied by his niece, Miss Hooven of Norristown, U. S. Senator Boies Penrose, Col. and Mrs. John V. Shoemaker, Col. James B. Coryell, Lieut.-Col. and Mrs. J. K. Weaver, Lieut.-Col. W. J. Elliott, Lieut.-Col. W. F. Richardson, Capt. Thos. J. Dolan, Lieut.-Col. John P. Penney, Capt. Peter Lyle Weaver, Col. Frank K. Patterson, Lieut.-Col. T. J. Keenan, Jr., Lieut.-Col. Ned Arden Flood, Capt. Eugene C. Kensil, Lieut. Harry J. Mohr, Dr. and Mrs. Hinkley, Dr. and Mrs. Biddle, Lieut. J. Marks Peters, Maj. R. T. Montelius, Capt. Charles J. Hendler, Mrs. Col. J. Lewis Good, Miss Flora Good and Miss Watson.

After dinner the party was driven in handsome coaches, horsed with specimens from General Miller's famous stables, to the Grant Tool Works, a new industrial plant just established and only awaiting the touch of the Governor's finger on the button to start the ponderous machinery. After a brief speech, Gen. Miller presented Gov. Stone, who was received with tumultuous applause. He spoke of the great State of which he has the honor to be the Chief Executive, and paid a high tribute to General Miller as a man of means who was a blessing to the community, and contemplated doing a great deal of good for the National Guard of Pennsylvania.

Senator Penrose was next introduced and was warmly greeted. The Senator complimented the citizens upon their prosperous condition, and then His Excellency pushed the button. Immediately the machinery began moving and the immense gathering broke out into a wild cheer.

An hour later a public reception was held at the Nursery Club, where several thousand people shook hands with the Governor.

The principal reception was held in the handsome club house in the evening, which was decorated most exquisitely under the direction of Maj. Lewis E. Beitler, who was given charge of the affair. Miss Florence Wiley, daughter of Brigadier General John A. Wiley, greatly assisted Maj. Beitler in his task. The embellishments which were essentially military, having as a background the tri-colored Keystone, indicative of the Division Mark, being edged in gold, as representing the Keystone of the Governor's Staff. Rifle stacks were placed at vantage points; carbines, sabres and guns glistened in graceful groupings representing the different arms of service in the State. At the end of the big dance salon was a graceful shield of flags and bunting surmounted by the electric legend "Welcome," and in the centre appeared the immense Keystone above described, each color being accentuated by a border of incandescent lights of similar hue. All of the high ceiling and the walls were festooned in yellow and white and during the Grand March the scene was enchanting, as we have attempted to illustrate on several of our pages.

COL. W. E. THOMPSON and LT. COL. JOHN H. CORBETT
14th Infantry (Camp Perchment)

Hundreds of the fair daughters of Pennsylvania were escorted by magnificently uniformed officers of the State service which, with the beautiful costumes of the ladies, presented an indescribable panoramic view.

As the band discoursed the sweet strains of the "Stars and Stripes Forever" a long ribbon, which was suspended from the ceiling attached to several balloon-shaped decorative pieces, was pulled and a shower of two thousand diminutive silk American flags fluttered on the assemblage. This feature in itself was a scene long to be remembered.

Prior to the dance the guests were in turn presented to the Governor and his distinguished colleagues. During the entire evening an elaborate banquet was served. It is estimated that several thousand persons took part in the event and is acknowledged to be the greatest affair ever held in the history of the City of Franklin.

THE general opinion in the Ninth Infantry is that Major F. L. McKee, of Plymouth, will be elevated to the position of Lt.-Colonel, and for the junior majority there are several candidates in the field. Those prominently mentioned are Captain H. W. Pierce of Co. I, Captain Calvin Pardee, Jr., of Company G and Captain J. C. Kenny of Company B. Either of these Company Commanders would creditably fill the position of Battalion Commander.

AT the recent State Shoot, held at Mount Gretna, the several teams voted to raise a fund sufficient to erect a suitable memorial over the grave of the late Capt. James B. McCalley, who greatly assisted in advancing the cause of rifle practice. The First and Second Troop of Philadelphia, Governor's Troop of Harrisburg and the Sheridan Troop of Tyrone, have jointly contributed $50 towards the project.

SEVERAL prominent field and line officers of the First Brigade are actively interested in the formation of an organization similar to the Old Guard of New York, which is to be known as the Veteran Infantry of Philadelphia. Its membership will consist of persons honorably discharged from the State, having served five or more years in commission or two or more enlistments in the Guard.

It is believed that a corps of this kind will stimulate members in the active commands to serve out their full terms, and it will prove especially interesting to those wishing to continue in the military in a semi-active manner.

THE initial move has been taken by Colonel Henry T. Dechert Second Infantry, to organize the officers of the First Brigade into an association similar to that in New York State. When fully organized, it is proposed to invite representations from the several commands in the Second and Third Brigades and eventually effect a Division Organization. The association is to be broad and strengthening in its scope and lectures are to be held from time to time at the different armories. These will be confined strictly to the betterment of the service, but in nowise is the organization to appear antagonistic to the administration.

MAJOR D. S. B. CHEW, who is regarded as one of the champions for the improvement of our armory system, points out the magnificent structures he visited during his recent trip to Buffalo. He thinks that some of the "charities" should be stricken from the list of State appropriations next year and the amount converted to the proper housing of our State Troops. Major Chew mentions particularly a company armory in the small town of Suspension Bridge, which is larger and better equipped than the best regimental armory in Pennsylvania. The condition of the several organizations, who are burdened with mortgages on their armories, is becoming desperate and it is earnestly hoped that the members of the Legislature will come to the assistance of Major Chew and favor measures, which he proposes to present at the next session.

Personal Mention

The condition of Adjutant General Thomas J. Stewart is somewhat improved and the physicians give every hope of a speedy recovery.

The new Division Headquarters in the Galena Building at Franklin, Pa., are beautifully furnished and fully equipped for military purposes. Col. John P. Penney is in charge of the same. Col. William J. Elliott, Assistant Adjutant General, is preparing to remove flag cases and other paraphernalia from the old headquarters, City Hall, Philadelphia, to Franklin, Pa.

Captain J. Clayton Erb, Quartermaster Third Infantry, is in receipt of a communication from Lieut. Ben Holladay Dorcy, formerly Battalion Adjutant of the Third Infantry, and now a First Lieutenant in the regular establishment. He has just returned from the Philippines on the Transport Lennox, and is temporarily stationed at Jefferson Barracks, Mo.

Sergeant Louis Schmidt, Commissary Sergeant Third Infantry, has presented a beautiful solid gold medal to the regiment, which is to be known as the "Schmidt Trophy" and to be competed for annually by the several members comprising the regimental Non-commissioned Staff. Sergeant Schmidt's efforts to promote pistol practice in this department is fully appreciated by his superior officers.

It is rumored that Captain William C. Wallace, Hampton Battery B, will shortly resign owing to his extensive professional practice, and that already a Committee of the Battery has waited upon Captain Breck, formerly in command of Knapp's Battery, to accept the Captaincy. Captain Breck is a very efficient artillery officer and would prove a valuable acquisition to Battery B in the event of Captain Wallace resigning.

NAVAL MILITIA NOTES

The fall and winter drills of our State Naval Militia have been resumed on board the U. S. S. St. Louis, which is located at the old pier, foot of Bainbridge Street, and the Shearwater is being put in readiness for winter quarters.

A very interesting rifle competition is being arranged by the officers of the division to take place at the First Regiment Rifle Range the latter part of this month.

A meeting of the commissioned officers will be held to discuss important matters regarding the future interests of the organization.

The Inter-divisional Cutter Race will be held on Sunday, October 20th.

BEST DAYS AT BUFFALO

The Closing Month at the Pan-American Exposition

The Pan-American Exposition in its closing month is well worth a visit, not only from those who have not yet been able to see it, but also from those who visited it in its earlier incomplete days. The managers and exhibitors who are able, wide awake business men have been quick to make any improvements suggested by experience, and it is now a superb exhibit of all the useful and ornamental arts, science and manufactures.

These facts, and the close proximity of Niagara Falls, whose stupendous grandeur is now at its best, and quickly reached by trolley, steam road or steam boat, should make this month's attendance the greatest of any.

Visitors who go by the Philadelphia & Reading—Lehigh Valley Route—will have the additional pleasure of a trip through the finest scenic region of America, decked in all the glowing colors of the Autumnal foliage, a sight long to be remembered.

Two more of the low-priced, seven-days excursions, by this popular route are scheduled for October 24th and 30th. Tickets good only on train leaving Reading Terminal 10.30 A. M., above dates, and good to return within seven days, on all trains except "Black Diamond Express," are sold at the special rate of $9.00 for round trip from Philadelphia. Proportionate rates from other stations.

For special regulations as to these excursions, reduced rates for other days, connecting trains, etc., consult any Philadelphia & Reading Agent, or address Edson J. Weeks, General Passenger Agent, Philadelphia.

L. E. WEIMER
LEBANON, PA.

L. E. WEIMER

Mr. L. E. Weimer, one of the representative citizens of Lebanon County, is peculiarly identified with the National Guard of Pennsylvania. When the question of organizing a Company in the City of Lebanon was suggested several years ago, Mr. Weimer was the first to come forward and give his support, morally and financially, furnishing the Stand of Arms for the new organization. Originally the Company was known as the Lebanon Rifles, and after existing as an independent Company for some time, they were admitted to the State Guard as Company "H" of the Fourth Regiment, their admission to the State service being largely due to the earnest efforts and influence of General J. P. S. Gobin.

Ever since the inception of the Company, Mr. Weimer has been regarded as its "Father." Several years ago he presented a very handsome gold medal, known as the Weimer Trophy, to the Company, which is awarded annually to the member making the best record in attendance and general efficiency.

Mr. Weimer is a native of Reading and came to Lebanon in 1856, where he organized the Weimer Machine Works with his brother, P. L. Weimer. During the Civil War they manufactured 400 field pieces of the Griffin Pattern and also built many gun lathes for the Scott Foundry from which were made the 13-inch gun. He is a Past Eminent Commander in the Masonic Order, and while never a politician he was unanimously elected a delegate from his district to the St. Louis Convention that nominated our lamented President McKinley.

MAJOR LEWIS E. BEITLER

One of the best known and popular officers of the State is Major Lewis E. Beitler, Aide-de-Camp of the Division Staff. He was born in Philadelphia and educated in her public schools and in the University of Pennsylvania department of law. After which he entered public life as Private Secretary to Mayor Edwin H. Fitler (the first Bullitt Bill Mayor), 1887-91, continued under his successor, Mayor Edwin S. Stuart, 1891-95, then Private Secretary to Governor Daniel H. Hastings, 1895-99, and then in his present office from Colonel Willis J. Hulings and Major Fred E. Windsor 16th Infantry holding a social chat on the hills of Somerset.

1899, as Deputy Secretary of the Commonwealth. He was closely associated, under Governor Hastings, with N. G. P. affairs, particularly so throughout the entire period covering the Spanish-American War, being most active, as the Governor's representative, in taking complete charge of and accompanying the Hospital Trains from Camp Alger, Thoroughfare and Camp Meade, and afterwards in tracing and caring for our sick and convalescent soldiers in the Philippines, Porto Rico, Cuba and the camps and hospitals throughout the country. He was appointed by Major General Miller upon the day of the General's appointment, as A. D. C., with the rank of Major.
